

INTERNAL MEDICINE FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

The mission of the Lafayette Internal Medicine Residency Program is to strive for excellence in our day-to-day practices with the goal of introducing innovation in the delivery of high quality, patient-centered, evidence-based healthcare to the patients we serve. With an evolving didactic curriculum, a host of pathology, a supportive administration and medical school, and a breadth of rotational experiences to provide a robust education, at the end of training our residents are prepared to confidently enter the workforce or fellowship without reservation.

WELCOME TO OUR PROGRAM

We have 26 Internal Medicine residents who train in two distinct hospitals. Ochsner University Hospital and Clinic's campus is the primary site of training during your first year of training. It houses a robust continuity clinic where you will follow patients over the course of your training. We also have a busy inpatient service at this hospital. It provides care to a diverse population including the indigent.

Ochsner Lafayette General, our second campus, offers training in a state of the art intensive care unit, houses the busiest emergency room in Acadiana, and an advanced certified primary stroke center. Rotations in hospital medicine, neurology, physical medicine and rehabilitation medicine are just a few of the other elective rotations offered here.

Our faculty are highly dedicated to the success of our residents. Our graduates are prepared to pursue careers as primary care practitioners, subspecialists, or can continue careers in academic medicine.
